Pastoral Traineeships

An Aboriginal Employment and Training Initiative

This is a great opportunity to become qualified and set yourself up for a fantastic career in Australia's vibrant Pastoral industry.

The GLNG Project is a US$18.5 billion pioneering venture to convert coal seam gas (CSG) to liquefied natural gas (LNG) for export to global markets. It represents a major investment in a cleaner energy source for the future. The Project involves the development of the GLNG gas fields in the Bowen and Surat Basins, the construction of a 420km underground gas transmission pipeline from Roma to Gladstone, and a two-train LNG processing facility on Curtis Island at Gladstone. The Project is a joint venture between Santos and three of the world's largest energy companies; PETRONAS, Total, and KOGAS.

Part of the success of the Santos GLNG Project is engaging with the communities in which we work in a safe, positive, and respectful way. As such, we are currently offering 2 opportunities for Pastoral Traineeships as part of our Aboriginal employment and training initiative. These positions are a fantastic opportunity to become skilled and experienced in Pastoral Operations by partaking in a 2 year program, while gaining a qualification (Cert III). You'll be learning and working on an operational property.

To express your interest in these positions, please email Katelyn Burey at kburey@goldenwest.org.au outlining how you meet the requirements.

You will become qualified in areas including, but not limited to:

- Occupational Health & Safety
- 4x4 Vehicle & Quad Bike Operations
- Tractor Operations & Maintenance
- Fencing Installation & Repairs
- Livestock Observations & Water Monitoring

To be successful in your application you will need:

- A safe & environmentally sustainable approach to work
- A current & valid unrestricted Driver's Licence
- To be a competent horse rider or willing to partake in an intensive horse riding course
- A desire to work in the Agriculture industry
- Great listening skills, teamwork ability and independence
