Expressions Of Interest are called for ASIST training to be conducted in Rural Centres in 2015

The Black Dog Ball Committee in partnership with Central Queensland Hospital and Health Service are offering ASIST training to members of the community who are likely to come into contact with rural families undergoing extreme hardship due to circumstances beyond their control.

The training program is an initiative that will deliver the Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training (ASIST) to those who may lack the skills and/or confidence to respond to their customers/friends who may be in crisis. ASIST is also relevant to those in helping professions who would like to increase their confidence and skills in helping people with thoughts of suicide.

Training is being offered FREE OF CHARGE as a result of funds raised by the 2014 Black Dog Ball to community members who may not generally have access to this essential service.
(Workshops generally cost in the vicinity of $250 to $300 per person)

We extend an invitation to you, your staff members, colleagues and friends to attend the training as follows . . .
