

Thriving in Uncertainty

How to make wise business decisions
by improving your financial management skills

A FREE Business Boost initiative

To support business growth in Central Queensland, the Department of State Development is offering the “Thriving in Uncertainty” workshop to small and medium-sized businesses from all industry sectors.

When operating in an environment of uncertainty, the ability to make wise business decisions is paramount to your success.

Most accountants help you understand your historical financial documents but that simply explains your past. Participants in “Thriving in Uncertainty” will build on their current financial knowledge by learning:

- How each financial statement offers a different perspective on your business
- The types of budgets to suit your business circumstances and how to develop and monitor them
- The types of financial ratios that put you in the driver’s seat to make the best financial decisions.
- About the range of funding and financing options and how to effectively use financial documents to attract financier’s funding.

Tina Zawila, Director of Sothertons Gladstone since 2007, presents this half day workshop. For 20 years Tina has assisted small and medium sized businesses to be more in control of their business through improving their financial skills.
